Dear Christina,

As the year draws to a close, it offers a chance for reflection. Although challenging and exhausting at times, this year has demonstrated the incredible commitment made by teachers and schools across the globe to ensure that their students continue to access quality education. This letter is a thank you to you and all at American College in Greece for your unwavering generosity to United World Schools. We are hugely grateful for your commitment to ensure that no child gets left behind as a result of the pandemic.

Transforming lives through education is at the heart of everything we do. Your UWS School is an investment in the future of the whole community and built with the support of the children, parents, village elders and local government. Although school buildings were temporarily closed this year, education has endured, remaining a cause for true celebration in the village and for every parent it represents a promising path for their child.

UWS Hway Hwe embodies the hope that the next generation will be empowered to lift themselves and others to realise their potential. Your support has transformed students' lives for good and delivered an education that equips young people with the skills that enhances their life opportunities and breaks the cycle of poverty. When children are educated, healthy, and empowered, families are healthier and there is a higher chance that the next generation will go to school, increasing the intergenerational sustainability of education. Your partnership is delivering powerful and permanent change to the lives of the children.

Thank you for being part of our journey. We are looking forward to 2021, and hope you are as proud of UWS Hway Hwe School as we are. Together, we transform lives.

Yours sincerely,

Tim Howarth
CEO, United World Schools
